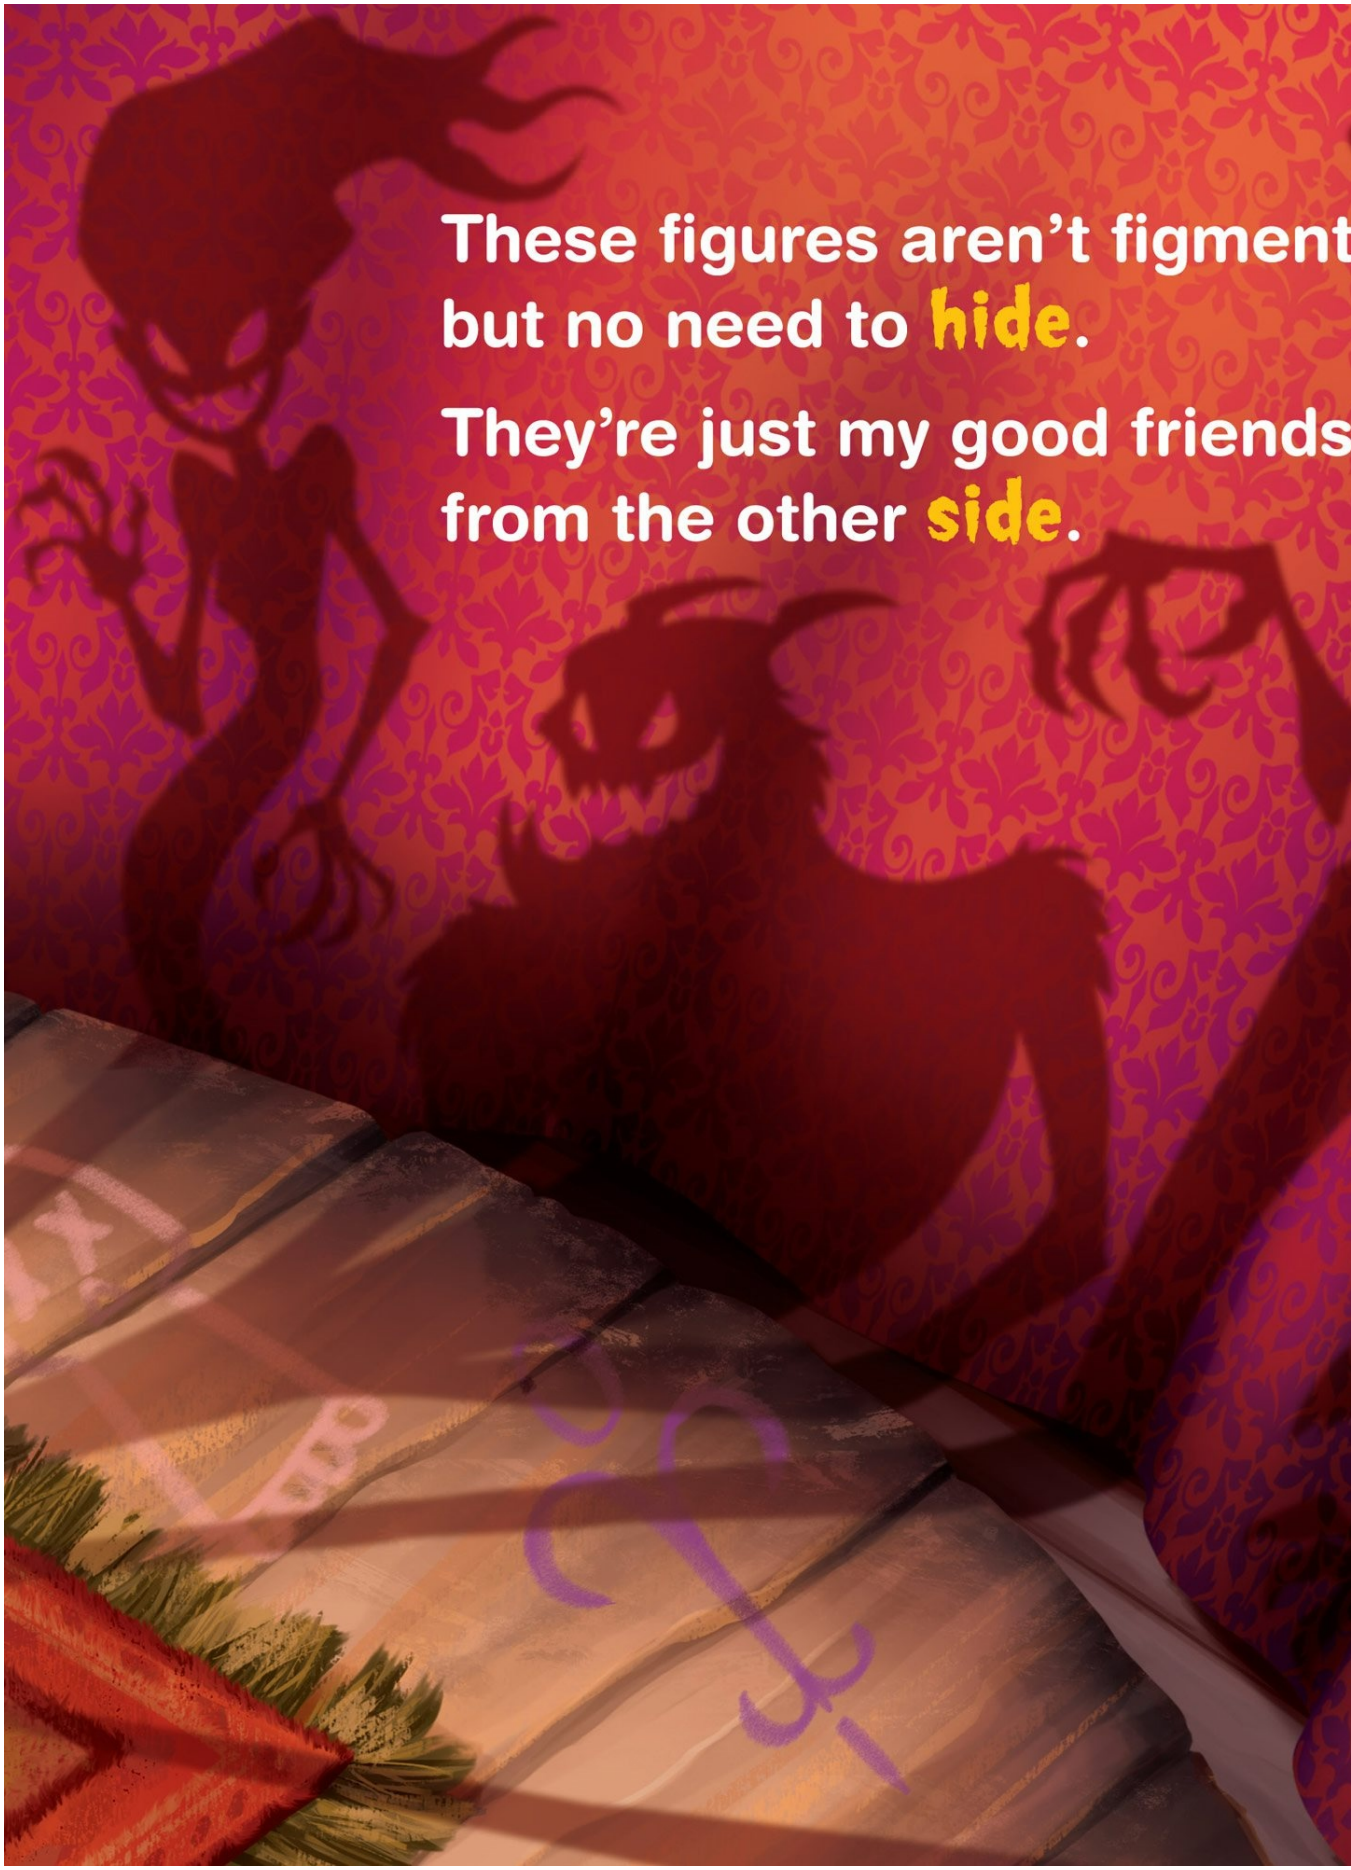
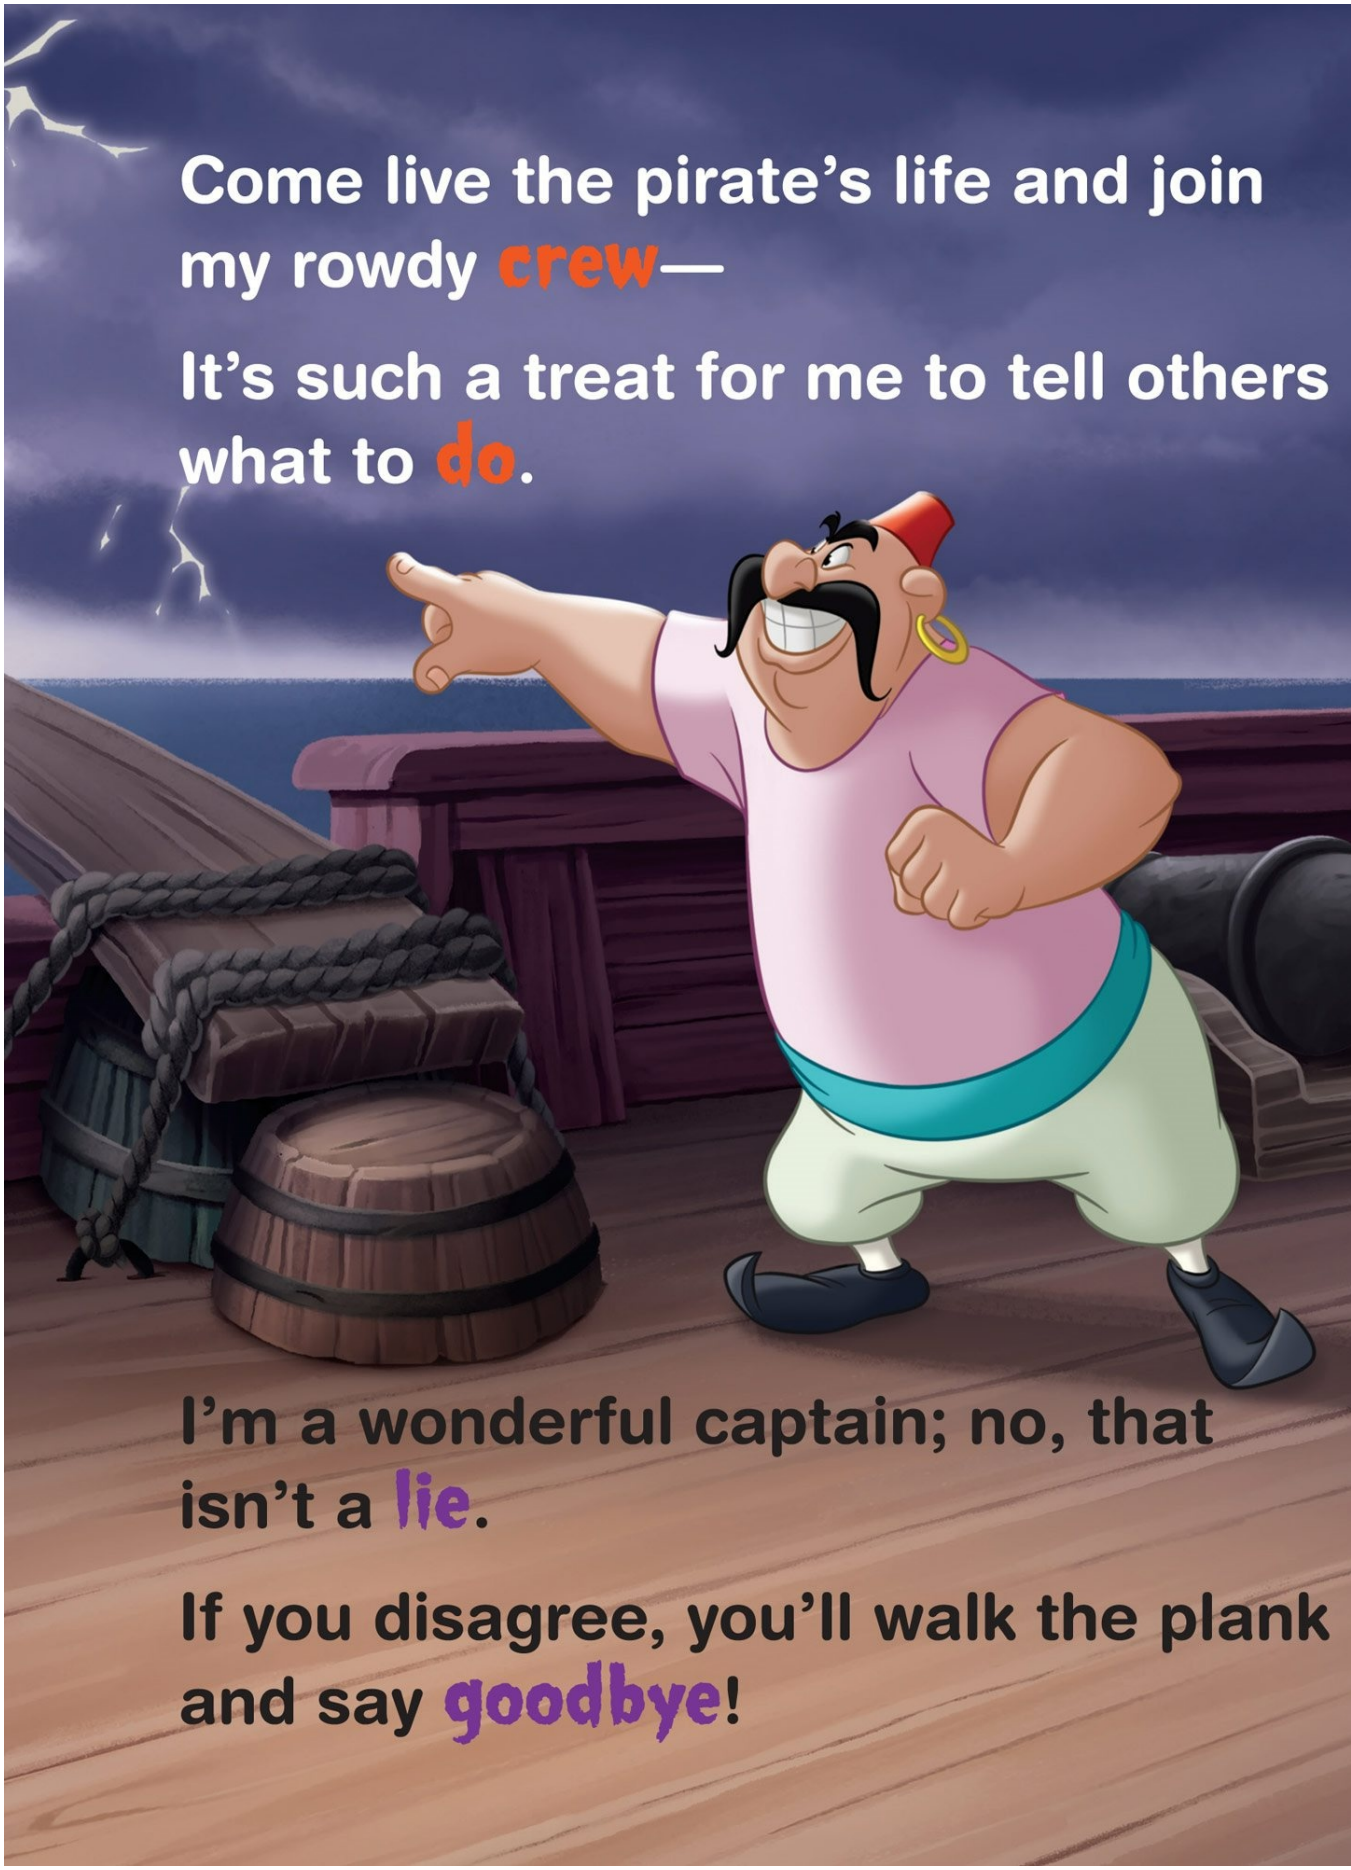
Shadows on the walls might
give you a fright,
But take a closer look
at these tricks in the night.



These figures aren't figment
but no need to hide.
They're just my good friends
from the other side.

My clothes aren't costumes,
meant to trick and confuse—
They are marvelous treats
that delight and amuse!
A well-dressed villain is a
in fashion . . .
So I only make mischief
my passion!



Come live the pirate's life and join my rowdy crew—
It's such a treat for me to tell others what to do.
I'm a wonderful captain; no, that isn't a lie.
If you disagree, you'll walk the plank and say goodbye!

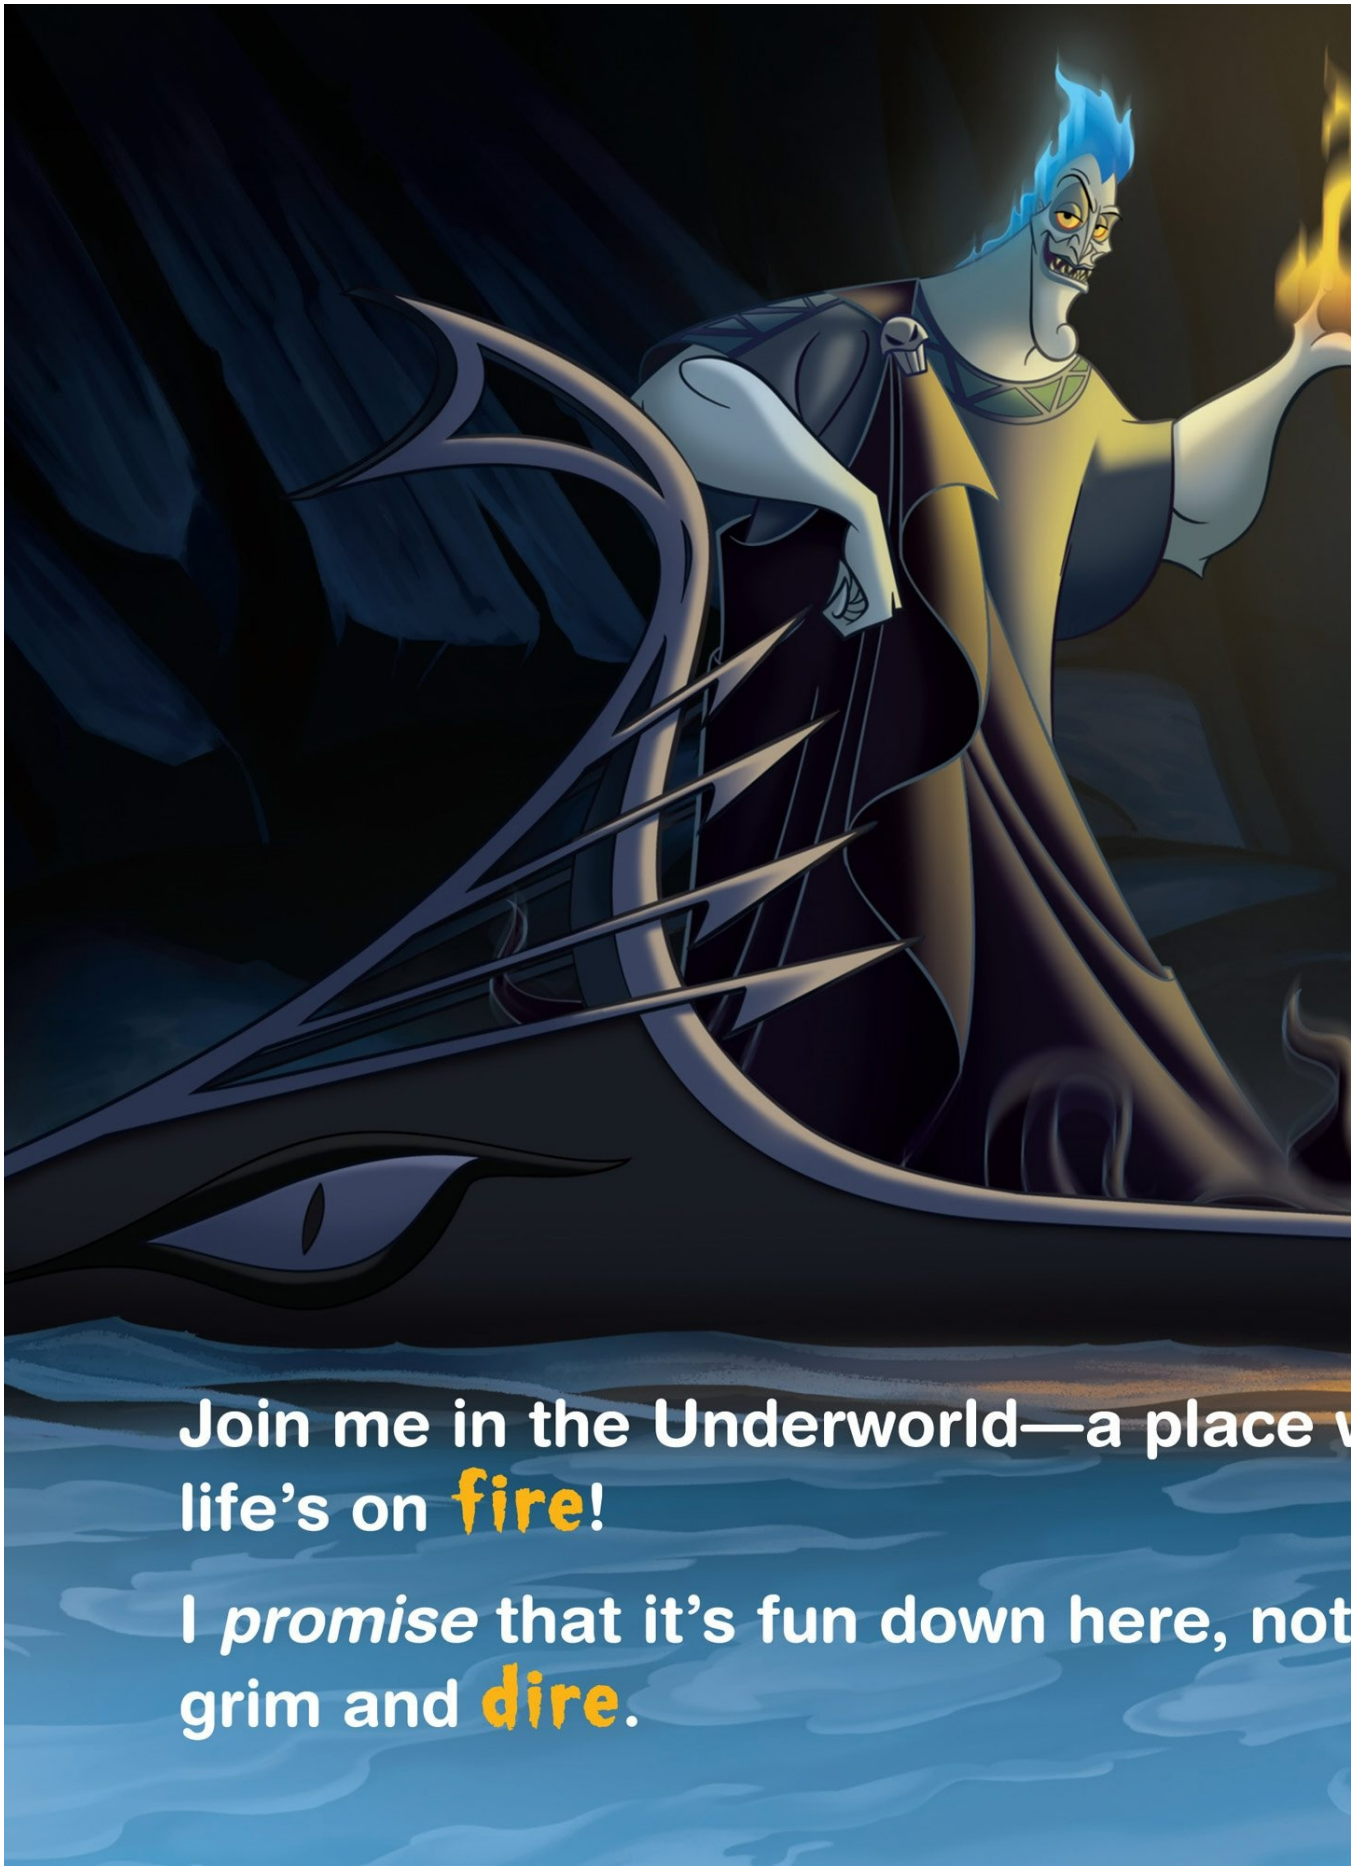
It is quite astounding, all the potions that I brew . . .
But if you don't tread carefully, I may use one on you!



Join me in the Underworld—a place w
life's on fire!
I promise that it's fun down here, not
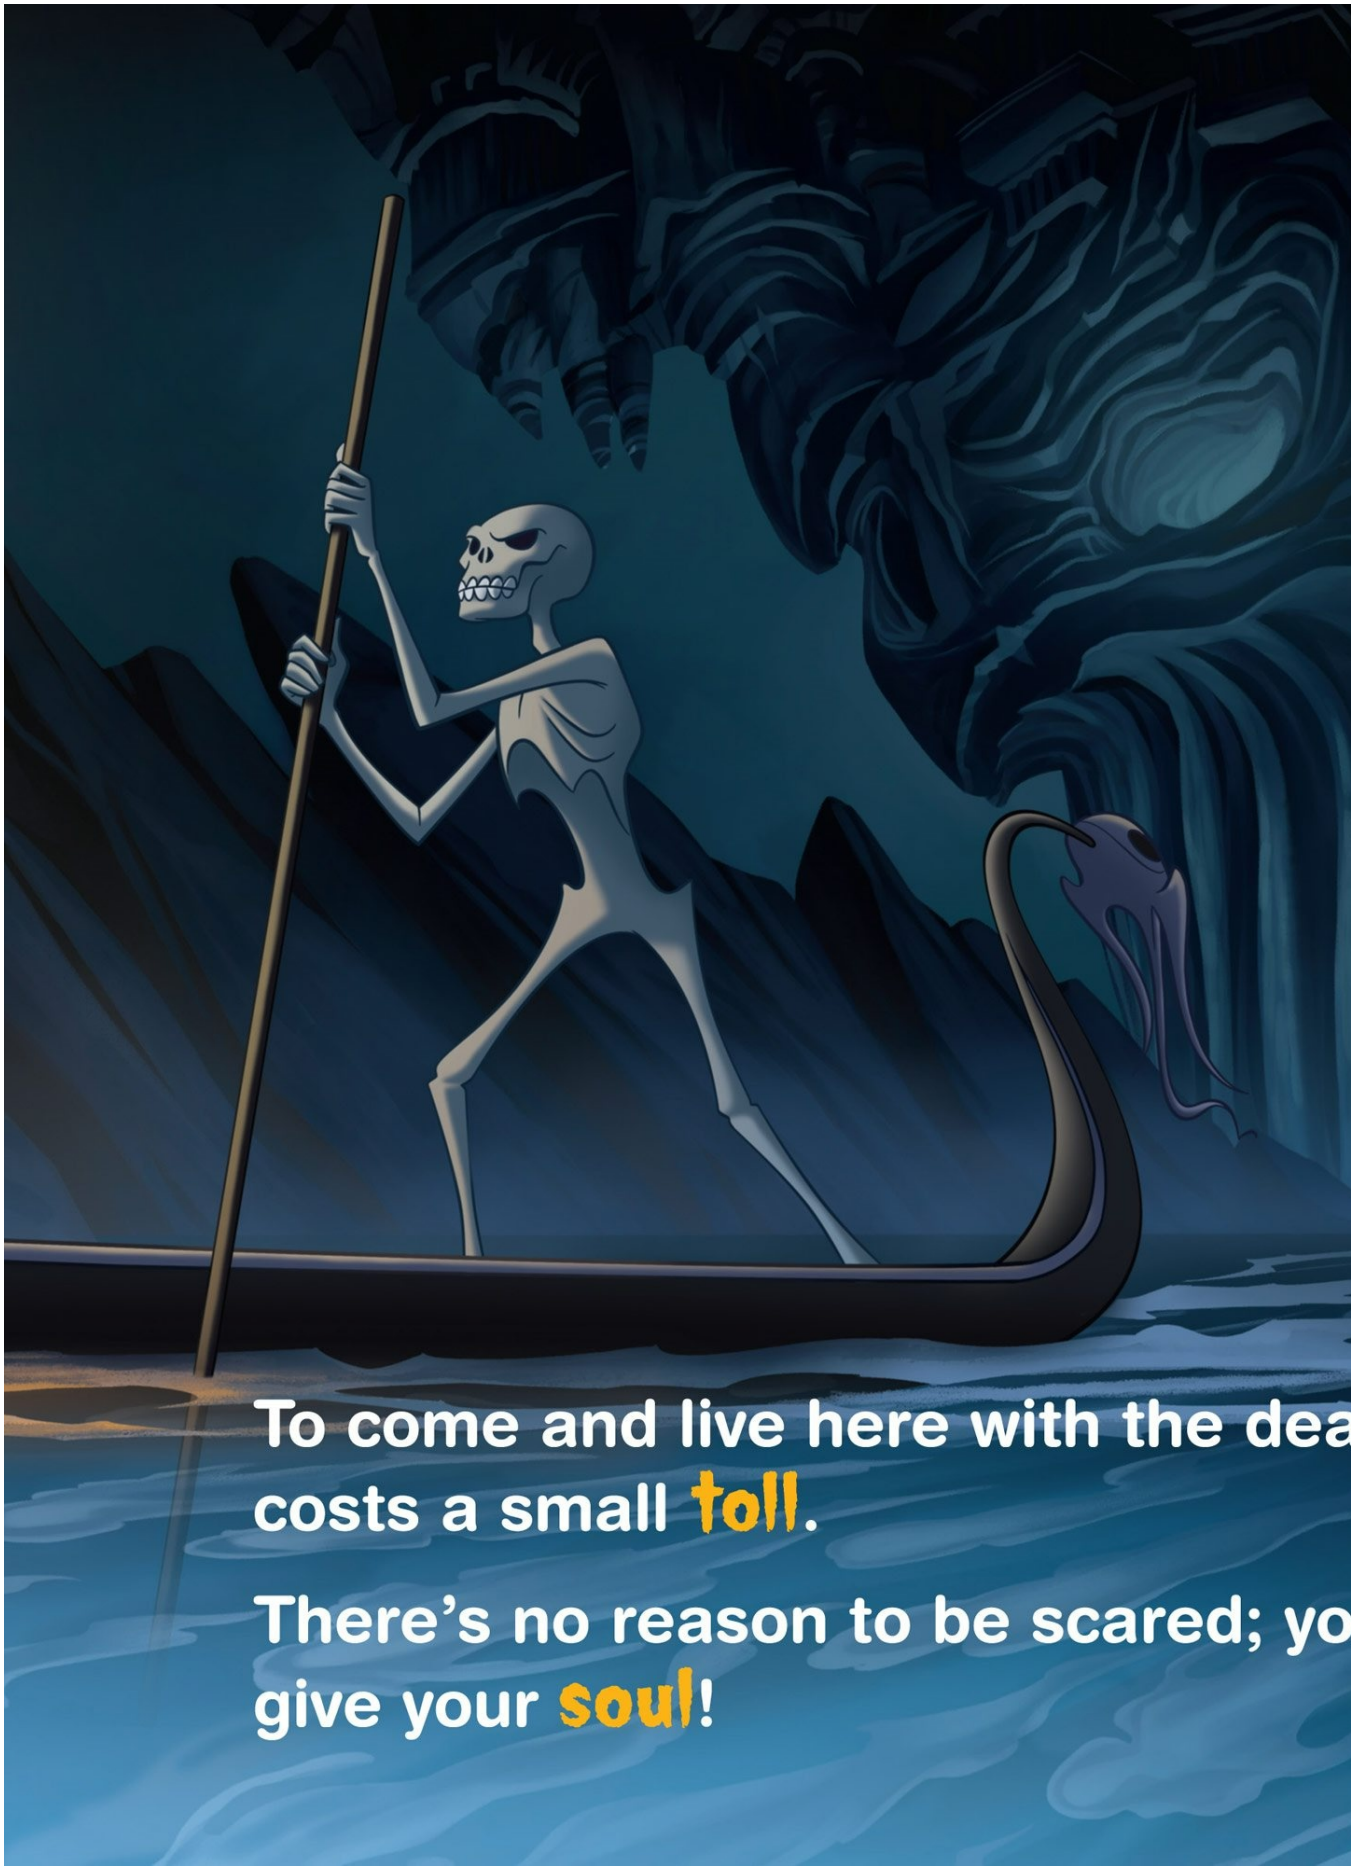
grim and dire.



To come and live here with the dea
costs a small toll.
There's no reason to be scared; yo
give your soul!

Come get life lessons from me,
a sea witch so wise.

I have secrets to share
that will open your eyes.

Change your face and
your voice; play some
brand-new roles.

Even simple disguises
fool unfortunate souls!

Don't fear the monsters
that lurk in the night.
Gaston will save you from
an awful fright!
My muscles will scare off
the hungriest beast. . .
And then as a treat, you can
cook me a feast!

aren't I so sweet?

On dark nights like this, many parties
are thrown,

But if you don't invite me, you'll be ch
to the bone.

I'll send my raven first, to distract an
catch your eye—

Then I'll become a dragon and arrive
to terrify.

As you see, tricks can be treats, and we all agree . . .
A little bit of mischief is fun and fancy-free.
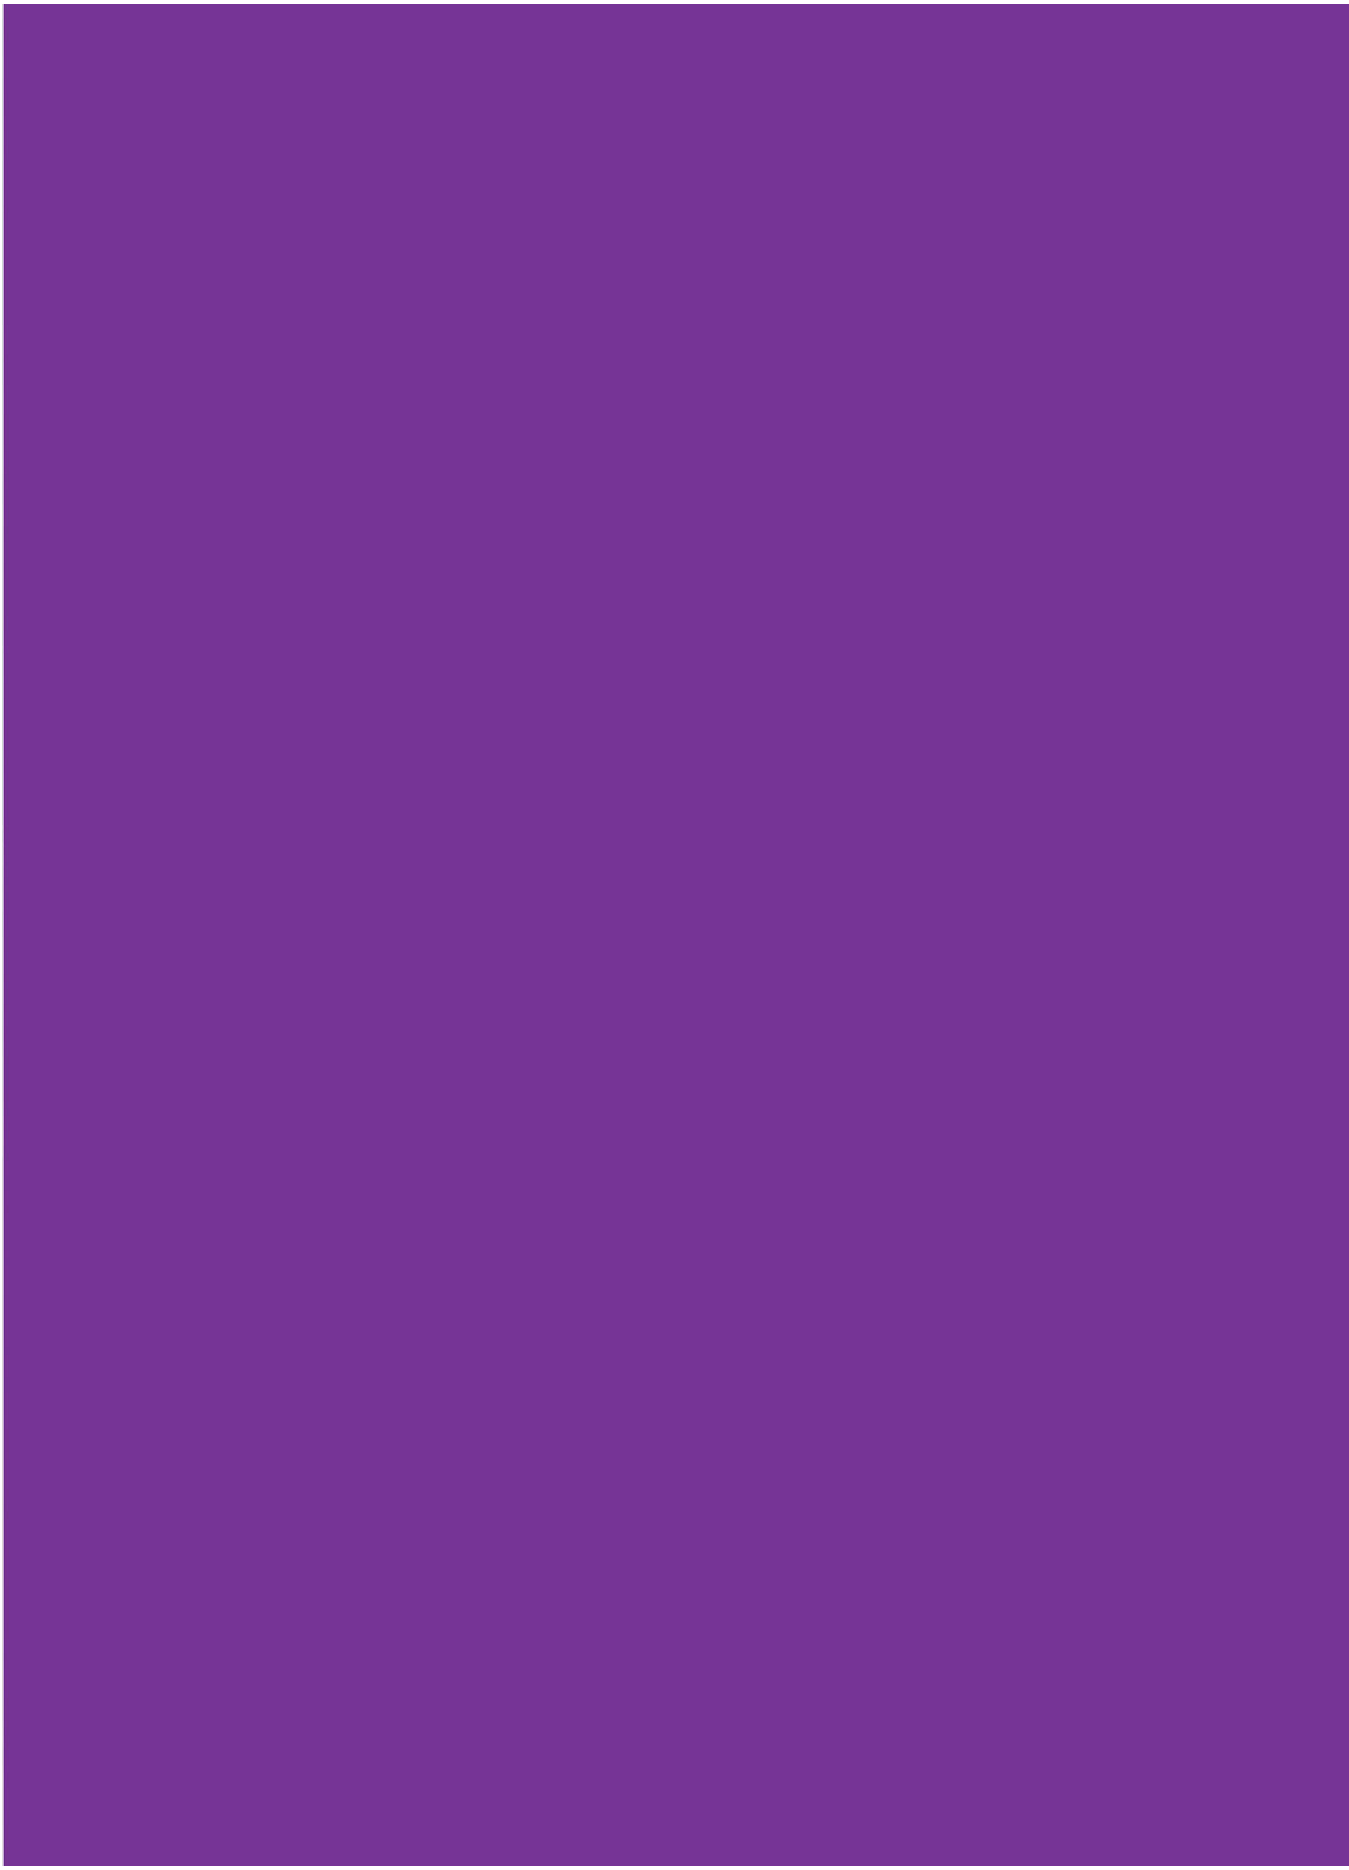
But whether you're
candy-sweet or plotting
a new scheme,
Be wary of us villains,
or we'll surely make
you scream!



Trick or treat?
Disney Villains don't need to choose—for ther
tricks are treats!
Whether they're serving poison apples or wearing sneak
they adore creating utter mayhem.
Join ten mischievous villains to find out why they finc
so very delightful.
